How we use personal information

This document explains how we collect, use and store personal information relating to potential or actual policyholders, beneficiaries under a policy, their family members, claimants and other parties involved in a claim. When we refer to individuals, this includes any living person whose personal information we receive in connection with the services and products we provide.

We want you to be confident about how we use personal information. As a regulated company and data controller, we take the responsibilities for the security and management of personal information seriously. That's why we invest in our systems and processes to make sure the way we collect, use, share, and store the information meets both the regulatory and our own high standards. When we talk about policy, this could include any subscriptions you have with LV=.

How we collect, use and share personal information

We only collect information that we need, and have strict controls to keep it safe. We collect personal information to provide our products and services (e.g. handling claims) to you. Without the information we collect, we can't give you a quote or an insurance policy and it may affect the outcome of any claims you make. Personal information we collect will be held in digital and / or paper files. We collect personal information such as name, address, date of birth, criminal convictions, health, claims history, IP addresses and information about the technology you're using. We'll also collect information which relates to the things you want to insure (for example your house or vehicles).

We collect personal information, including contact details about everybody named on your policy, quote, incident or claim when you:

- ask for a quote or apply for a policy and when we prepare your renewal quote
- buy and/or use a product or service
- ask us a question
- make, inform us of, or we investigate a claim or incident, including anyone associated with that incident.
- make a payment
- update personal details
- change cover
- register a complaint
- take part in market research (e.g. customer satisfaction surveys)
- update marketing preferences

When you make a claim, we may ask you to provide information on whether you are vulnerable or experiencing medical symptoms that could affect how or when we attend to your property or vehicle. We do this so that we can keep our customers and our suppliers safe.

The personal information we collect will be used by us and third parties who process information on our behalf. This includes organisations who administer your policy, service your claims and reinsurers.

We never sell your data to anyone.

Legal grounds for processing personal information

We collect personal information to provide our quotes, products and services to you.

As a regulated financial services organisation, we're required to comply with legal and regulatory obligations such as the prevention, detection and reporting of fraud and other financial crime

We'll process personal information for our legitimate interests, when we have a business reason to do so. This includes but is not limited to:

- developing, improving, and personalising our products, pricing and services
- enhancing our customer service, experience, and relationship (e.g. customer and market research, business analysis, providing relevant product and service information)
- providing a claims service that keeps our customers and suppliers safe by identifying when they may be vulnerable or experiencing medical symptoms that could affect us attending a vehicle or property

- improving the relevance of our advertising and marketing campaigns and identifying advertisement audiences
- displaying personalised online advertisements on third-party websites and social media platforms
- helping to detect and prevent fraud and financial crime
- developing and improving our administration, security systems and insurance applications
- promoting responsible lending and helping to prevent over-indebtedness
- sharing it with third parties in the event of organisational change (e.g. if we bought or merged with another organisation)
- sharing personal information with other LV= companies and the Allianz Group

If we need consent to process personal information, we'll ask for this first. This consent can be withdrawn at any time.

We'll ask for consent (or consent from your next of kin), to obtain any medical/health information we need. In an emergency, we'll manage claims as appropriate, until we're able to get consent.

Payment card details

We use a secure payment processor for all card payments. When a payment is processed, we share the details of the payer, such as the cardholder name and billing address, with the processor. We also share with them contact details provided by you so that your bank can authenticate the transaction and help protect you against fraud. In response, we receive a unique transaction code and an extract of your card number, which we store as a record of the transaction.

You can choose to renew your insurance automatically using these card details – just let us know when you buy your policy. You can change this at any time.

You can also choose to use these card details again, if you make any changes to the policy.

Automated decision making and profiling

We use the personal information you provide to us, information we already hold about you, information about you provided by third parties and information about the risk of insuring you to inform our business decisions (e.g. product design, pricing, customer journeys or marketing strategy). We use profiling and automated decision making to help determine the prices, policy terms, relevant products/ services, when you research or ask for a quote, buy insurance, make any changes, renew or make a claim.

When you ask for a quote, we'll use an automated underwriting engine that takes account of the information you provide on your quote. We may also validate information you provide against other records we hold about you in our systems and third-party databases, including public databases. We take account of all of the information available to us to help determine the likelihood of a claim being made, how much it might cost and we use that assessment to decide whether or not to offer insurance, the price of the policy and whether we can offer the option to pay monthly.

When you have a policy with us, we'll use an automated underwriting engine so we can offer a renewal quote to you. We may use your information to perform analytics and make sure we're appropriately pricing our products. If you need to make a claim under a policy, we use automated systems to help manage and settle the claim. We take account of the information we hold about you, details of the policy and details of the claim. We may also validate the claim against third-party databases, including public databases. We use the information to determine the cost of the claim and how to settle the claim such as repairing, replacing or providing cash settlement.

To help us prevent and detect crime, we evaluate and predict whether your conduct accessing our products or services suggests a risk of fraud. You may automatically be considered to pose a fraud or money laundering risk if our processing of your personal data:

- reveals your behaviour to be consistent with that of known fraudsters or money launderers
- is inconsistent with your previous submissions
- reveals that you appear to have deliberately hidden your true identity.

This activity is essential to allow us to decide whether there is a risk of fraud, which may result in us refusing to offer you insurance or accepting your claim.

If you've chosen to receive marketing information from us, profiling and automated decision making will be used to make our marketing more relevant, e.g. personalising the channels used to market to you, the marketing messages you receive and the offers you're sent.

Where we make an automated decision that has a legal or substantially similar effect, you may request a team member to review that decision. We will take into account your comments and assess whether the decision was made correctly

Multiple policies at the same address

We may provide a discount if there's more than one policy at the same address. This could result in anyone at the address who has a policy or quote with us being made aware that someone else living at the address also has insurance with us.

International transfers

In the event that we process personal information outside the UK, the processing in those locations is protected by UK and European data standards.

If the information you provide to us is transferred to countries outside the UK and the European Economic Area (EEA) by us or our suppliers, steps will be taken to make sure appropriate security measures are in place with the aim of ensuring that your privacy rights continue to be protected.

Where your claim occurs abroad, we'll also send data to the necessary service providers and agencies as required to service your claim..

The Industry Databases and Institutions we check and exchange information with

Financial crime & fraud prevention agencies

The personal information, about any customer or third party or representative, we have collected will be shared with crime and fraud prevention agencies, including their members, law enforcement and other relevant organisations. LV= and these organisations will use it to prevent financial crime and fraud and to verify your identity. If financial crime or fraud is detected, you could be refused certain services, finance or employment. Where we suspect financial crime or fraud, we may cancel any policies you may have with us, retain any premiums paid, be unable to pay any claim or offer you the requested product or service.

Regulatory bodies

Personal information will be used or disclosed as required to regulators, for example Financial Conduct Authority (FCA), The Prudential Regulation Authority (PRA), Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) and Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS), to monitor and enforce our compliance with any regulation.

Claims and Underwriting Exchange and other databases

You must tell us about any claim or incident, even if it wasn't your fault. We'll search databases such as the Claims and Underwriting Exchange (CUE), Motor Insurance Anti-Fraud and Theft Register, CIFAS, No Claims Discount (NCD) database and all DVLA databases when you apply for insurance, make a claim or renew your policy, to validate your no claim discount and claims history (or that of any other person or property likely to be involved in the insurance or claim).

We'll share personal information such as claim or incident details including dates, costs, fault status, any impact to no claim discount (NCD) and if any personal injury has occurred. The table below details the ways we share personal information for the policyholder and/or other people named on the policy, quote or involved in any claim.

Incidents or claims

When we are notified of an incident or claim, we'll share this with relevant agencies and appropriate service providers. We'll keep this information updated as the claim progresses and is settled. This includes details of any persons involved in the incident or claim and details of the policyholders and/or the NCD holder attached to the policy.

We'll also collect information, including CCTV, dashcam footage or images where relevant, from anyone, e.g. claimant, witnesses or police. We may also use data from your car/car manufacturer.

Brokers

If we get your details from an insurance broker, personal information (e.g. policy details, claims, payment, suspected fraud and other financial crime information and any other data the broker may process as part of your relationship with them) will be shared between us and the broker.

Credit reference agencies (CRA)

In order to process your application, renewal or claim, we'll supply personal information about you or anyone on the policy to credit reference agencies (CRAs) and they'll give us information, such as financial history. We do this to assess creditworthiness and affordability, check identity, make pricing and underwriting decisions, manage policies, trace and recover debts and prevent fraud and other financial crime.

We'll also continue to exchange information with CRAs on an ongoing basis, including settled accounts and any debts not fully repaid on time. CRAs will share personal information with other organisations. This data will also be linked to the data of any joint applicants or other financial associates.

The identities of the CRAs and the ways in which they use and share personal information are explained in more detail at experian.co.uk/crain, www.transunion.co.uk/crain and equifax.co.uk/crain

Partner or affinity associations

If you get a quote or buy through one of our partner or affinity associations, we may pass some of the personal information back to them (e.g. policy details, claims, membership and suspected or proven fraud and other financial crime information).

Price comparison or other introductory services

If you request a quote on a price comparison website or other introductory service, the information you give them is passed to us. We'll also pass personal information (e.g. policy details, and suspected or proven fraud and other financial crime information) back to them.

Public information

We may use public information (such as electoral roll, county court judgements, vehicle taxation status, MOT information, bankruptcy or repossessions).

Marketing

We work with selected partners to display relevant online advertisements to you on third-party websites and social media platforms.

We will use personal information to identify appropriate audiences for our advertisements. The selected partners we work with to do this do not use your information for their own purposes and we ensure they delete it once we have identified advertisement audiences.

We'll send you marketing information by email, post, phone and/or SMS about our products and services if you've given us permission. The marketing information we will send includes information about products, services, discounts and business updates.

We use your home address, phone numbers and email address to contact you according to your marketing preferences.

If you do not want to receive marketing, you can tell us any time by giving us a call using the number shown in your documents.

If you opt out of marketing, this will not stop you from receiving important service related information that we need to tell you about relating to your policy or claim.

Social media and published information

We may use published information, including social media, for prevention and detection of fraud.

Specialist services we use

We use other companies to provide some services, e.g. banks and building societies, breakdown and recovery agents, claim adjusters, claim suppliers, legal service providers, communication services, debt recovery agencies, marketing agencies, reward voucher and incentive scheme administrators, fraud and other financial crime investigation services etc. They'll be given the personal information they (or their sub-contractors) need to manage their service.

Market research agencies

We may share personal information with market research agencies who will conduct market research and business analysis on our behalf.

Reinsurers and reinsurance brokers

Reinsurers provide insurance policies to insurance companies. Insurance companies engage a reinsurance broker to advise and assist in arranging a reinsurance policy. We may need to share any personal information, including policy, claims, medical, and suspected fraud and other financial crime information, with our reinsurers and reinsurance brokers.

Other insurers

We share and collect your personal information with other insurers if you make a claim, to verify that the information you've provided is correct and prevent financial crime and fraud. If you move to a new insurer, we may confirm certain details about your insurance to them.

DVLA

If you give us a driving licence number when requesting a motor insurance quote, to add a new driver or preparing a renewal quote, we'll pass it to the DVLA MyLicence service to verify the status of the licence and entitlement. We'll then get any relevant restriction information, endorsements and/or conviction data.

We may also liaise with the DVLA to establish the keeper of the vehicle, to support us in any claim or policy investigation.

We will retain any images you send us of your driving licence, for the purposes of processing your quotation and administering your policy.

Motor Insurance Database

We'll add details about your insurance policy to the Motor Insurance Database (MID), which is managed by the Motor Insurers' Bureau (MIB). The MID and the data stored on it may be used by the Police, the DVLA, the DVANI, the Insurance Fraud Bureau and other bodies permitted by law for purposes not limited to but including:

- electronic licensing
- continuous insurance enforcement
- law enforcement (prevention, detection, apprehension and/or prosecution of offenders)
- the provisions of government services and/or other services aimed at reducing uninsured driving

If you're involved in a road traffic accident (either in the UK or abroad), insurers and/or the MIB may search the MID to obtain relevant information. Other persons (including their appointed representatives) pursuing a claim in respect of a road traffic accident (including foreign citizens) may also obtain relevant information held on the MID.

It's important that the MID holds your correct registration number. If it doesn't, you risk the police seizing your vehicle. You can check that your registration number is shown on the MID at askmid.com

Flood Re

The Flood Re scheme helps homeowners get insurance in flood risk areas. If your property is eligible, we'll send your property details to the scheme.

Medical and other health services

If you make a claim and give us consent, we'll get medical information from the relevant health provider, e.g. doctor or hospital. In an emergency we'll manage claims as appropriate, until we are able to get consent.

Veterinary and other animal health services

If you make a claim and give us your consent, we may choose to get medical information on your pet from the relevant animal healthcare provider.

Claimants

We collect and use information about claimants (including children under the age of 18) and witnesses, in order to process or pursue a claim.

Other insured parties

An insured party on your policy (e.g. a named driver) may notify us of an incident or claim against your policy.

Law enforcement and government agencies

Information may be given to us by law enforcement agencies (e.g. the police) about an incident, which may result in a claim or may affect a policy or ongoing claim.

Giving someone permission to talk to us about your policy

We can only talk about the policy to you or someone we're satisfied that you've authorised to talk to us, on your behalf, after we have carried out data security checks.

Communications

When you contact us, personal information that you give us will be recorded and stored on our systems. All calls and web chats are recorded. This helps us improve our customer service, train our staff, respond to complaints and prevent fraud and other financial crime.

All communications will be in English. You can get documents from us in writing, Braille, large print or audiotape by contacting us.

How long we keep your personal information

If you buy a policy from us, we'll keep all personal information for seven years after the policy ends to ensure we meet our statutory and regulatory obligations (e.g. as laid down by FCA, Money Laundering regulations, the HMRC, MIB and other regulatory bodies), and to allow us to manage complaints, claims and prevent fraud or financial crime.

From seven years and up to 40 years after the policy ended, we'll keep the personal information we need for analysis purposes (e.g. risk and business modelling such as for pricing) and so that we can identify who and what was covered by the policy. Beyond 40 years, we'll keep information we need for longer term analysis (e.g. weather event modelling).

In exceptional cases, we may need to keep claim information for longer than 40 years (e.g. where serious injury has occurred and there is potential need to provide life-long care to an injured person or when requested by a court of law).

In some cases where there is a valid reason to retain the data, it will be necessary for us to hold your information past the specified retention periods listed. For example, where there is a legislative or relevant regulatory requirement or for the purposes of any court proceedings or if there are reasonable grounds to believe that the data needs to be retained for legal proceedings or the party, to whom the data relates, provides their consent.
